DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 8/1/08 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 7, 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Weigl et al. (6,454,945). Weigl discloses a microfluidic device and method of using the device. The method includes the concurrent flowing of streams containing sample material, trapping beads, and (optionally) an extractant liquid in the form of an alcohol. The beads may include trapping compounds such as antibodies or enzymes and detectable label. See Figures 4 and 13-16 and columns 4, 6, 9 and 17-19 (esp. col. 9).

The Examiner submits that flowing both the sample and a bead having a compound – such as an antibody or enzyme – for trapping a substance from the sample as well as a label meets the limitations of “flowing the specimen through a detecting element having a first substance trapping portion immobilizing a first substance” and “flowing a solution containing the label through the first (and second) trapping portion immobilizing...the first (and second) substance trapping body” . The Examiner considers the channel to be a “substance trapping portion” of the element where the first and second substances (from the sample) are immobilized (on the bead). The solution also contains the label since the label is present on the bead along with the trapping compound. The trapped substances may then be detected on the bead after interaction with the label or after release from the bead. As for the second substance, Weigl recites using different compounds on the beads in column 36, lines 17-43. Weigl teaches the use an alcoholic extractant solution in column 9, lines 57-67. An alcoholic solution would inherently form a layer separate from the aqueous solution.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's amendment and arguments, filed 8/01/08, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 7, 12 and 13 under Parce have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Weigl.
